Additional comments: It was a pleasure having Akaash here for the duration of his internship/project. He maintained a good attitude about the work that he was doing even when the work was objectively boring. He managed to use the skills he learned early on while investigating titration solvents and applied them to the work we were doing with the LC as well as with any QC lab samples that came in that he was involved with. At no point was it a burden or an inconvenience to have him here and I have no doubt he'll be successful in his college studies as well as in the career path he chooses, whether that be in chemistry or not.
